What can we learn from women living with HIV about prevention?

What is the goal of the research study?
This research study is about preventing HIV infection in women. Researchers are trying to figure out how to reach women who are at risk for contracting HIV in order to improve use of pre-exposure prophylaxis or PrEP.

What is involved in the research study?
We are recruiting women who have been diagnosed with HIV infection in the last five years to participate in a one-time 30 to 45-minute private interview. The interview will be audio recorded, but your interview will not be associated with your name and the recording will be erased once the study is complete.

What topics are discussed?
We will ask questions about:
- What you have might heard about PrEP and how to prevent HIV.
- Other health issues you have had, like mental health difficulties and sexually-transmitted infections.
- Thoughts you have about preventing HIV in women in your community.

How will I be compensated for my time?
After completing the interview, participants will receive $40 gift card and limited travel support to and from the interview site.

Contact the PrEP in Women Study team to see if you could participate:
Phone number: 773-702-1334
Email: prepforwomen@medicine.bsd.uchicago.edu

This research study is being run by Dr. Jessica Ridgway at the University of Chicago.